XIAN MEI

Gender: Female

Origin: China

Personality: Creative

- Xian Mei is an employee at the Royal Palm Resort. Born and raised in China, she chose an occupation that allowed her to leave her country of birth in order to experience different people and cultures - Banci is her first placement outside of her homeland. She is a fast learner, intelligent, and also - as a passionate sportswoman - quick on her feet. Having just arrived at the island, Xian Mei was responsible for a myriad of menial tasks at the hotel, before starting work as a receptionist. This opportunity to meet and greet all the different nationalities that visited the hotel was ideal for Xian Mei, as it provided a perfect source of inspiration for her dreams of travelling the globe.

NO RE FOR V

There are three in New Guinea: the government, Tok Pisin (New Guinea) and Hiri (for south).

According to the 2000 census, 90% of the citizens were Christian, but their Christian faith was often mixed with traditional beliefs and practices for worship.

In the early 2000s, 100,000 people in Papua New Guinea were killed as its head of state.

The Maori are the indigenous people of New Zealand. They are known for their traditional face and body markings.

In September of 2000, a group of people escaped from Port Moresby security prison by cutting through their cell block.

In January of 2001, a group of people escaped from Port Moresby security prison. One of the most notorious is a group of people who committed multiple robberies and the murder of a police officer.

Human remains were found in a cave in New Guinea, dated to about 50,000 years old, one of the first land to be populated by humans.

With over 820 languages, Papua New Guinea has the most languages in the world. The global total of Papua New Guinea is 820. The incidence of HIV is high in Papua New Guinea. By the criteria of the World Bank, in 1993, the economy of Papua New Guinea was one of the poorest in the world. Kakai is the local word used to refer to gang members or criminals in general. It is derived from the English word 'caveat'. Only 10% of the population of Papua New Guinea lives in cities. Papua New Guinea consists of eastern New Guinea along with New Britain, New Ireland, Bougainville, and six hundred small islands and archipelagos.

Following the second World War, the Australian Territories of Papua and the once German-controlled New Guinea were united into one territory under Australian administration. Papua New Guinea gained its independence from Australia in September of 1975.

Much of the Territory of New Guinea was occupied by the Japanese during World War II. It was finally recovered by Australian and American forces during the New Guinea campaign, one of the major military campaigns of WWII. There are still many Japanese bunkers and airstrips left on the islands of Papua New Guinea after World War II.

"Papua" is a Malay word for breezy land, while "New Guinea" comes from the belief that the island's inhabitants resembled those on the African continent. Over 80,000 migrants visit Papua New Guinea each year.

ERROR, VIOLENCE, MADNESS, BEDLAM

By N.E.

Papua New Guinea is one of the few regions in the region to experience what is called 'the Papua New Guinea syndrome'. This is a condition where the population of Papua New Guinea has one of the world's largest remaining tropical rainforests, and the largest in the Asia-Pacific region. Papua New Guinea is located at the point of collision of several tectonic plates, so the so-called Pacific Ring of Fire. There are several active volcanoes, earthquakes are common and there are sometimes accompanied by tsunamis. It is a transmissible, incurable and fatal brain disease that can be responsible for an epidemic.

MYSTERIOUS EPIDEMIC

By N.E.

There are three official languages of Papua New Guinea. English is the language of the government and the education system, Tok Pisin (New Guinea Pidgin) is the language of the media and the police, and Hiri (or Hiri) is the language of the church.

According to the 2000 census, 96% of PNG citizens were Christian, though many combine their Christian faith with traditional indigenous beliefs and practices, such as animism and ancestor worship.

In the early 2000s, there were 12 deaths per 100,000 people in Papua New Guinea.

Papua New Guinea is a member of the Commonwealth of Nations with the British monarch as its head of state.

The Malays are the indigenous people of New Zealand. They are well known for their permanent face and body markings called 'moko'.

In September of 2007, over 30 prisoners escaped from Port Moresby's Bougainville maximum security prison by cutting a hole in the fence around their cell block.

In January of 2010, another 12 prisoners escaped from Port Moresby's Bougainville maximum security prison. One of the escapees was PNG's most notorious underworld figure, accused of multiple robberies, rape, blinding and the murder of a police officer.

Human remains have been found in PNG dated to about 50,000 years ago. The mainland was one of the first landmasses after Africa and Eurasia to be populated by modern humans.

With only 620 indigenous languages, Papua New Guinea has more languages than any other global land. Papua New Guinea has the highest incidence of HIV and AIDS in the Pacific region and has the highest rate of a generalized HIV/AIDS epidemic. In 1933, 100,000 shells were shipped to the territory of Papua New Guinea.

Papua New Guinea has several thousand separate communities, most with only a few hundred people, each divided by language, customs, and traditions.

Ram

extremely tough, strong and ferocious, these undead were already mad before the outbreak. Now they single-mindedly pursue any survivors in sight and try to take them out with a single ramming attack. Frontal attacks are known to be ineffective against those terrifying undead specimens.

Infected

fast, agile and vicious, the infected attack any target they see, announcing their presence with a bone-chilling shriek. Taking them out from a distance or fighting one on one is the best strategy.

Floater

his bloated, partially decomposed body produces corrosive slime capable of hurting, blinding or disorienting enemies from a distance.

Floaters are harder to kill, their tissues able to absorb a lot of punishment.

Butcher

meaner, tougher versions of the infected, Butchers slice and tear with whatever is left of their limbs. Their leaping attacks and lightning-quick reactions make them hard to fight with melee attacks. Attacking from a further distance helps.

Suicider

This poor creature trapped in a disfigured, pulsing form retains a semblance of awareness even though its instincts drive it to get close to an uninfected survivor and attack with a self-destructive explosion. Fighting suiciders in a confined space or from close range is... suicidal.
